

Dear David

My comments on the latest consultation are as before. The vast majority of people in Hallow would rather see several small developments instead of another estate. It would be better to meet the housing needs for the village across a number of smaller sites than just one site, as the smaller sites can provide better design, and less 'housing estate' feel which is destroying the traditional character of the village.

The site I have put forward at Park Acre Church Lane Hallow would fit the small site criteria and as a local developer I can assure its delivery.

Kind regards

Gavin Warr
